meta [met-uh] [adjective]

[SIDE-NOTE] <<<~~~ an adjective is a word that modifies, qualifies, or describes nouns and pronouns. Generally, adjectives appear immediately before the words they modify.

[adjective]

1 - pertaining to or noting a story, conversation, character, etc., that consciously references or comments upon its own subject or features, often in the form of parody: A movie about making a movie is just so meta—especially when the actors criticize the acting.

2 - pertaining to or noting an abstract, high-level analysis or commentary, especially one that consciously references something of its own type.

[noun]

1 - a consciously and playfully self-referential story, conversation, etc.: That dialogue was an example of meta at its best.

2- an abstract, high-level analysis or commentary: writing a meta to explain the character's motivation.

[verb] (used without object)

1 - to analyze or comment on something in a meta way: I spend more time metaing about the show than actually watching it.
